One Google Account for everything Google

If the email address you've used for the adoption report is registered for a Google account, use it to login and you're done. If not, click "Create account" to get the next page.

A screenshot of a web browser showing the "Create your Google Account" page. The page has a white background with a light gray border. At the top left is the Google logo, and at the top right is a blue "Sign in" button. The main content area is titled "Create your Google Account" and contains several sections of input fields: "Name" with "First" and "Last" text boxes; "Choose your username" with a text box ending in "@gmail.com" and a link "I prefer to use my current email address"; "Create a password" and "Confirm your password" with two text boxes; "Birthday" with "Month", "Day", and "Year" dropdown menus; "Gender" with a dropdown menu; "Mobile phone" with a country code dropdown and a text box; "Your current email address" with a text box; "Default homepage" with a checkbox labeled "Set Google as my default homepage." and a note below it; and "Location" with a dropdown menu set to "United States". At the bottom center is a blue "Next step" button.

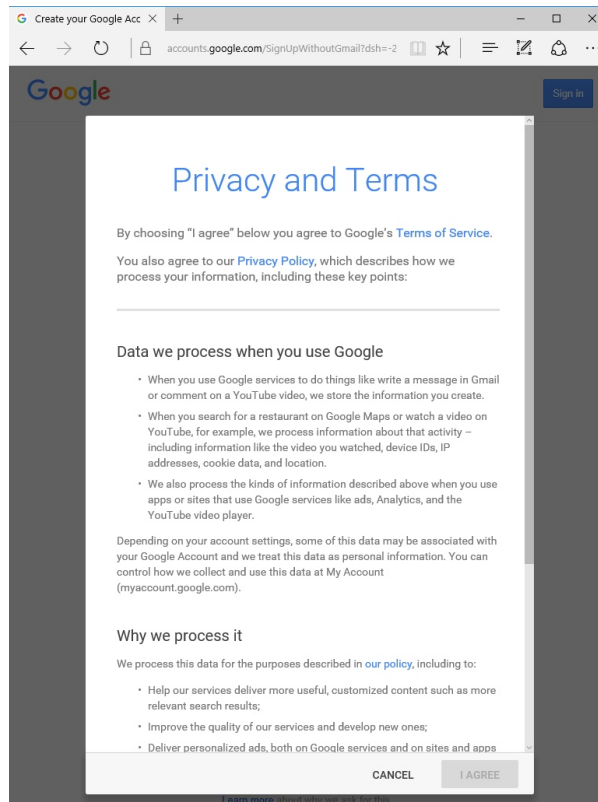

Fill out the form, referencing notes below.

Enter the email address you are using for the adoption list, which received the welcome email from the group. Click "I prefer to use my current email address" to enter an address other than a gmail.

A mobile phone number is not required.

Note the checkbox near the bottom, "Set Google as my default homepage". Uncheck the box to avoid changing any browser settings.

Click "Next step".

Scroll to the bottom of the privacy notice and click "I Agree".

Most likely, a verification message will be sent to you by email. You will need to click a link in it to activate your Google account.

It is also possible that you will see a verification screen.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the Google Accounts page. The browser's address bar shows the URL `accounts.google.com/UserSignUpWithoutGmaildvt`. The page title is "Google Accounts". The main heading is "Verify your account". Below the heading, a message states: "You're almost done! We just need to verify your account before you can start using it." The "Phone number" section includes a dropdown menu for country (set to the United States) and an input field. An example number "(201) 555-0123" is provided. A callout box contains two bullet points: "Google will only use this number for account security." and "Standard text messaging rates may apply." The "How should we send you codes?" section has two radio button options: "Text message (SMS)" (selected) and "Voice Call". A blue "Continue" button is located below the options. At the bottom, a note states: "Important: Google will never share your number with other companies or use it for marketing purposes."

If you get this screen, follow the instructions.

You have now registered your email address for a Google account. When you want to view the group on the web, sign in to Google using that account.
